Dear Sir:

Good day!

In the ensuing DOH National Campaign about COVID-19 and mass vaccination awareness, the Medical Services Department is having a webinar entitled "COVID-19: Updates and Vaccines" on July 21, 2021, from 9:00am to 11:00am. The speaker of the said activity is the undersigned. This will enlighten the participants further regarding evolution of SARS-CoV-2 virus, which is the causative agent of COVID-19, and how vaccines work to achieve population immunity.

This Medical project has been made possible with the help of the different student organizations.

For this activity to be well-served, I hope most if not everyone (students, faculty and administrative staff) can attend.

The department will request the participation of our Barangay community, so that we can extend to them the opportunity of this COVID-19 awareness campaign.

Attached herewith is a concept paper for your perusal.

Thank you for your time. The Medical Department is hoping for your support on this matter.

Respectfully yours,

CORONAVIRUSES (COVs)

- ❑ Large group of viruses infecting mammals and birds
- ❑ Consists of core genetic material (mRNA), surrounded by an envelope with protein spikes (crown-like appearance)
- ❑ 4 genera : alpha, beta, delta, and gamma
 - Alpha and beta = known to infect humans
 - Human CoVs (HCoVs) = primarily respiratory pathogens
 - 7 CoVs

Structure of SARS-CoV-2

The diagram illustrates the structure of SARS-CoV-2, a member of the Betacoronavirus genus. It features a purple spherical nucleocapsid with internal red (+)ssRNA. This is surrounded by a blue envelope containing yellow membrane protein (M) spikes. The outermost layer consists of green nucleocapsid protein (N) spikes. The entire structure is labeled with its respective components: spike protein (S), nucleocapsid protein (N), membrane protein (M), envelope protein (E), and (+)ssRNA.

The infographic, titled "Types of SARS-CoV-2 vaccines for COVID-19 Attenuated vaccines", is from the International Society for Immunology (www.immunology.org). It features a circular diagram of a virus with orange spikes, labeled "Contain weakened SARS-CoV-2 virus". Below it, a cell labeled "immune cells" is shown attacking the virus. A Y-shaped structure labeled "antibodies" is also depicted. To the right, under "Considerations", it says: "A well-known approach which requires time and extensive testing. The immune response resembles the natural infection." Examples in human use include the Oral Polio vaccine. In clinical trials for COVID-19, Codagenix is mentioned. The URL <https://www.immunology.org/> is at the bottom.

The infographic compares the efficacy of various COVID-19 vaccines. The table shows two columns of data, each with two rows of information. The first column includes Pfizer, Moderna, Astra, and Sinovac (Brazil). The second column includes J&J/Janssen, Gamaleya, and Novavax. The data is as follows:
